SEVENTEEN DROWN IN A LAKE WRECK

TWO STEAMERS COLLIDED—ONE WAS SUNK IMMEDIATELY.
SOME OF CREW RESCUED

Accident Came So Suddenly That
The Men Did Not Have Time
To Leave Vessel.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Cleveland, Ohio, May 24.—The steamers "James H. Wood" of the Gull fleet, and "Frank H. Goodyear"
of the Mitchell fleet, collided in a fog
near Thunder Bay Monday morning.
The "Goodyear" sank in forty-seven
fathoms of water and seventeen of her crew are reported drowned. Captain Heminger and six of the crew were rescued by the "Wood." The latter reached Port Huron with a six-foot
hole in her bow. Both were steel vessels. The "Wood" was up-bound and the "Goodyear" coming down.

Further Details.
Port Huron, Mich., May 24.—The
collision of the "Goodyear" and
"Wood" occurred thirty-five miles
north of Point Aux Barques at 5:30 Monday morning in a heavy fog. The "Goodyear's" captain and steward,
and the steward's mother and wheels-
man were saved and brought to Port Huron on the "Wood." Many of the "Goodyear's" crew were killed by the falling of the hatch before they had a chance to jump into the water. All had life-preservers on when the vessel sank. The "Goodyear's" cook had his baby dashed from his arms by a falling hatch and the infant was lost.
When the steamers came together
the crew of the "Goodyear" had only time
to jump overboard before the boat
began to sink. Suddenly the "Goodyear" parted in the center and sank out of sight carrying with it all but five. The bow of the "Wood" was badly stove in but was kept afloat
through the efforts of the men at the pumps. The "Wood's" lifeboats were lowered and Captain Heminger, Steward and wife, Frank Mollick,
and George Grant were taken aboard.
The "Wood" remained near the scene
seven hours, but failing to find more
of the "Goodyear's" crew steamed for this port, arriving today.

One of the survivors says those aboard had no chance as the Goodyear sank so quickly. He saw in the lake a woman with a child in her arms and at the same instant one of the hatchmen struck the woman and
both went down.

PLANS CAMPAIGN FOR REELECTION TO NEXT CONGRESS

Insurgent Congressman Will Raise
Cry of Roosevelt and Insurgency.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
Washington, May 24.—The House
progressives are planning to sweep
Roosevelt into the terrible campaign
which they will face before reelection
next fall, with the battle-cry "Roosevelt
and Insurgency."
Hitherto secret information, known
to every insurgent, is that Roosevelt,
just before the close of his administration, planned to write a letter endorsing the fight on Cannon and the house rules.
To a committee including Representative Nelson of Wisconsin as chairman, he expressed himself as thoroughly in sympathy with the progressive movement, especially in the fight against Cannon and the house
rules.

"Cannon has been the greatest obstacle in the way of my efforts to secure good legislation for the people
of the country, throughout the seven years of my administration."
This was the plan on March 3, 1909. After a night conference with President-elect Taft, Roosevelt met
the insurgent leader just before noon
March 4, and declared that he would be sponsoring the progressive
of his successor. If he publicly indorsed the insurgents.

The only objection he made to a public declaration of his sympathy
was the fact that his successor might be embarrassed. However, he plied with Taft, to whom he introduced
the insurgent committee, in behalf of the insurgents, and Taft turned
the matter off in a jesting way.

BIG HOTEL BURNS: TWO LOSE LIVES, ANOTHER MAY DIE

is supposed to have caused the fire.

INJUNCTION MAY BE ASKED FROM COURT

Thomas J. Neacy Will Stop Building
of Spill Barns on State Fair Grounds.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
Milwaukee, May 24.—The next step
of Thomas J. Neacy in the state fair
tangle is expected to be an injunction
against the building of the spill barns
in the spot selected by the board.
This is part of the plan which
was evolved some time ago in case
the report of the experts examining
the books showed what was expected.
The last legislative appropriation
for the spill barns, but the board refused to buy the ground designated in the bill and attempted to place the barns elsewhere when Gov. Davidson objected. They then decided to build the barns on almost the same location
they now are and it is this that Mr.
Neacy will ask for an injunction.
Grant C. Fisher of Janesville, Cannon and McLaren of Milwaukee, three members of the board, are the ones
who have been opposing the high-
banded methods of the rest of the board in expending the state funds
and ignoring the purposes of the appropriation and they will doubtless aid Mr. Neacy in his latest move.

GLIM-MAKERS TO HONOR EDISON

6,000 ELECTRIC STATIONS

In The United States Alone According
To Statistics Compiled For the Big Convention

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
St. Louis, Mo., May 24.—Several thousand delegates, representing
electric light companies, in all parts of the United States, Canada and Mexico, are in attendance at the twenty-fifth convention of the National Electric Light association,
which opened its session formally
today. The convention will continue through the week and one of the principal features will be the celebration of Edison Day, in honor of

ELECTRICAL WORLD PAYS HOM-AGE TO MASTER GENIUS.

Thomas A. Edison whose genius alone
is responsible for more than two thirds of the wonderful progress of electric lighting during the last thirty years. In connection with the convention there is a great and costly
exhibition at the Coliseum hall, which shows in chronological form the progress made in electric lighting and in the utilization of electrical power
since the first electric light plant was established in Appleton, Wis. in 1882.
During the Seventies Edison began
to experiment with the problem of lighting by incandescent lamps and his work was first discussed in the newspapers in 1878. The enthusiastic reports of the newspapers, which
predicted a great future for Edison's
system, caused an extraordinary decline in the price of raw shares.
Edison made the first demonstration
of his incandescent lamp a year later
at Menlo Park, but not until the summer of 1880 did those experiment lamps come into practical use
outside of his laboratory.

Now, according to the statement of
Frank W. Fennell, of New York,
President of the National Electric Light Association, there are about 6,000 central electric lighting stations
in the United States alone. More than one half of these companies
are also engaged in the electrical supply business. The central station
companies of the country have an investment of $1,250,000,000. They have a gross income of more than $250,000,000 a year and develop nearly 2,500,000 horsepower.

In 1879 the first miniature electric railway carrying passengers was put in operation by Siemens and Halske
at the Berlin Exposition. It was merely an exhibition plant and not until two years later was a commercial road put in operation in Europe,
a mile-and-a-half affair just outside
of Berlin.

At present there is a track millions of electric city and interurban
railways of 40,247 miles, in the United States, using 82,216 cars, and representing capital liabilities of 4,557-000,000.

Equally marvelous was the development of the telephone industry. It was at the Centennial Exposition of 1876 when Alexander Graham Bell
exhibited his first telephone. Today
there are more than 2,500,000 telephones in use in the United States
and the amount invested in exchanges
and their annexes to more than $250,000,000. The investment is steadily growing at a rapid rate.
The first storage battery a French
inventor, was built in 1881, and
was exhibited at the Paris Exposition.
It was many years after that time
when the invention was put to practical use. In 1888 "Tosli" contributed materially to the development of the electric power industry, by his valuable inventions and discoveries in relation to alternating currents. Not until then was it made possible to make practical use of the transmission of electrical power.

The first electrical power transmission plant was established in 1890 in a small town in the Colorado mountains, where the plant furnished
power for a mill. Since then the most marvelous progress has been made and power transmission is one
of the most important features of electrical industry.

The discovery of the X-rays by Roentgen in 1895 was at first only of scientific interest, but has developed
in a great measure and has made the X-rays a valuable assistant in modern

INCREASED NEWS SERVICE BEGINS

GAZETTE ADDS TO ITS PRESENT EXCELLENT NEWS FACILITIES.

RECEIVED BY LEASED WIRE

Special Public News Disseminating Telephone Set Has Been Installed For This Purpose.

In order to increase the news value of its pages the Gazette has closed a contract with the United Press association for their state news service, and in addition will receive what is known as "the pony" news service of the same association, which includes both foreign and general news stories. This service is received in the Gazette news room direct over a leased wire furnished by the Wisconsin Telephone company, from the state office of the association in Milwaukee.

In order to handle this special news service an instrument, known by the technical name of a "Public News Dissemination Set," has been installed, one of the most powerful of telephone instruments. The news matter is sent over this wire to several papers, belonging to the United Press association circuit, at the same time, and is taken down directly on to a typewriter, thus saving much time.

The state service thus secured covers the entire state while the general news service is used merely to augment the excellent national and world wide scope of the Associated Press of which the Gazette has been a member for several years past. It is the state service that is particularly interesting as it covers newshours before the Milwaukee papers can handle it and reach the Gazette field. The Milwaukee office of the United Press has recently been opened and only the largest of the newspapers outside of Milwaukee are served by them. The office is in charge of Warren Hullock, for many years connected with the Milwaukee Sentinel and under him are a corps of trained assistants who receive and prepare the news stories for the papers taking the service. The Milwaukee office is directly connected by the special leased wires with all the offices of all their subscribers making no delay in sending out the reports at frequent intervals during the day.

Added to this new service the Gazette will continue to secure the Associated Press reports which cover the entire country. This reaches the office via the Postal Telegraph and Cable company, the service starting at nine in the morning and continuing until press time, 5:30, after which only important items are sent by bulletin. The broadcast service also received daily from the Associated Press office in Chicago, one of their large distributing centers.

To add to these two general news services the Gazette is also a member of the North American Press Syndicate of Grand Rapids, Michigan, from which it obtains its cuts and special feature stories which have appeared in the columns of the paper for eighteen months past. This syndicate also has offices in New York City and New Orleans, a special corps of artists and photographers at the disposal of its members who furnish photographs and pictures of the important happenings of the world in a few hours' notice.

Special correspondents of the Gazette furnish daily letters from Monroe, Brodhead, Beloit, Evansville, Edgerton, Milton and Madison, and other one hundred correspondents throughout the Gazette field give semi-weekly and letters relative to the happenings in their communities. This gives the Gazette one of the finest general news services that any paper in the state enjoys and the steadily growing lists of readers throughout the adjacent cities and rural districts shows the appreciation of these innovations.

CRITICS HAD ROASTED HIM.

The Cannibal Chief—Have you any preference as to how you shall be cooked?

The Captive (formerly an actor)—Yes, I would prefer to be roasted. I am sorter used to that.

If you do a big thing, make a big purchase, close a big bargain, tell the public about it with commendable emphasis. Small advertisements on big and important things are like weak voices trying to send their voice out among thousands. Make your advertisement as large and attractive as necessary, in proportion to the value and importance of the bargain you are offering.

Advertising does three things—informs the public who you are—where you are, and what you have to sell.

SHE SAVED HIM

By BENJAMIN L. TUCKER

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I was riding one day on a road in what was then a territory of the United States in an unfrequented region. I belonged to the country, though not to that particular part of it, and was dressed in the costume in vogue there—namely, a woolen shirt and trousers, high boots and sombrero. Hearing the gallop of horses behind me, I turned and saw two men coming. Each man rode a horse and led another.

I thought nothing of the matter till they came close behind me, when I heard a rough voice shout:

"Hands up, stranger!"

I knew enough of the practices of the country to understand that if I didn't drop my hands and above both hands up over my head I would get a bullet in me. My revolver was at my hip, but to draw it would be sure death. One of the men rode in advance of me and kept me covered, while the other ordered me to dismount and give up my revolver. I did so, and, taking my horse in tow, he left me and the horse he had been leading and together they rode on rapidly.

It was an hour after this that I heard other horses, and several men came up to me and surrounded me. One of them recognized in the horse I rode his property. I told him the story of how I had come into possession of it, but he said I might spare myself such yarns as that, and I was taken back to the nearest town and thrown into jail, charged with horse stealing.

The jail consisted of the second story of a small brick house, the windows of which had been fitted with bars. I was put into one of these rooms. The upper part of the door also was barred, so that the jailer could see a prisoner without opening the door. I knew it would only be while the man who had lost his horse could get together an improvised court before I would be tried and if I couldn't prove I wasn't a horse thief I would be hanged. Being a stranger there, I didn't see how I could furnish the evidence.

It was about sunset of the day I was arrested, while I was pondering on the chances of swinging, that I looked up and saw a young face at the barred opening, in my door. By the long hair parted in the middle I knew the owner of the face to be a girl. She appeared to be about sixteen, but she was not much over fourteen. She was looking at me sympathetically. I was twenty-one years and at that age said to have been good looking.

"What y' been doin'?" she asked. "Horse stealing," I didn't think it worth while to assert my innocence. "Whatch' they do with y'?"

"Hing me."

A whitish tinge came on her face, and her eyes grew very big. "D' y' want me to let y' out?"

"Can you do so without his being known that it was you who did it?"

"Heck on so. I'm a party good lar."

"How can I get away?"

"There's horses below. There's nobody about but now."

"Well, if you can let me out you may save my life."

She went downstairs, brought up a bunch of keys and with one of them unlocked my door. "It's then that I got a full view of her. She was tall, well formed and but for her skirts, which were so short they looked as if she had outgrown them, would have passed for nineteen or twenty. She was rather a wild looking thing, not at all tidy, and her hair was uncombed. She ran to a small stable in rear of the jail and led out a horse that stood saddled and bridled. Taking the reins in my left hand, I put my arm around her, giving her a kiss full of fervent gratitude, then, mounting, dashed away. The last glance I gave her showed me a red spot in each cheek. She had doubtless been kissed for the first time by a full-grown man.

I had been out an hour, and my horse was getting jaded—he was a very slow beast—when, hearing a gallop behind me, I urged him on, turning at the same time to learn who was coming. I saw skirts fluttering in the wind. Not being afraid of a woman, I slowed up and the next time I turned saw that my pursuer was the girl who had let me out of jail. She was riding ascaddle, and her hair was flying.

"Well," I said, "what is it?"

"I just thought I'd go with ye."

I was startled. Many things passed through my brain, the principal being that if caught I would be surely hanged for horse stealing, to say nothing of abduction. But I couldn't be more than hanged and might as well be hanged for both crimes.

"Well, come on," I said.

We rode till darkness came and, for the matter of that, till daylight. Then we were safe.

I told the girl, who was a niece of the jailer's wife and had never been taught anything, that we must part for awhile, since I intended sending her to school. She vowed she would stay with me. But I stood firm, promising that if she would remain at school two years she might come back to me.

She consented at last, and during two years we never once saw each other, though we corresponded. Through her letters I was able to note the improvement going on in her. At first they were dreadfully crude; indeed, so much so as to be amusing. But from the first bespoken innocence. At last she returned, and great was the change in her. We were now man and wife.

AS MEMORIAL TO CANADIAN VALOR

$40,000 Monument Designed By The Sculptor, Allward, Dedicated At Toronto.

[Special to the Gazette.]
Toronto, May, 24.—In the presence of a large assembly and with the accompaniment of an elaborate military display, the magnificent monument commemorating the valor of the Canadian soldiers who fought and fell under the British flag in the South African war was dedicated today by Earl Grey, assisted by General Sir John French, the famous British soldier who won fame in the relief of Kimberley and in other stirring events in the war with the Boers. For the dedication ceremonies the troops of the Toronto garrison turned out in full force and there was also a good representation of the veterans of the Northwest Rebellion and of the Boer war, together with numerous semi-military and patriotic organizations. The monument occupies a conspicuous site on University Ave. It was designed by W. S. Allward, the Toronto sculptor, and was erected at a cost of nearly $40,000, which amount was raised by popular subscription. The memorial bears the name of every Canadian who died while in active service in the South African war.

AUTOMOBILE PAPER.
A Boston dispatch has this to say about the automobile craze which has attacked the country so violently this year:
"Western bank people are as much disturbed over the growth of the automobile as they are over the western land speculation. A western bank cashier now in the East says:
"Although automobiles are not sold on the mortgage basis openly, to a considerable extent the country is being mortgaged to buy automobiles.
"In the West more than in the East people have been giving their notes in part payment for automobiles and the selling agents have been negotiating these notes with the banks.
"Our bank, after investigation, stopped taking what we call in the West 'automobile paper.'
"We found that 90 per cent of the people buying automobiles with notes had no proper basis for credit, and could not afford to operate an automobile, much less buy it. Therefore, our bank made a rule to make a 'note' against the credit of the automobile buyer, but to be sure and not take a note given to buy an automobile.
"The automobile business is far-reaching in its effect. The central manufacturing West is getting the money. When you see an automobile numbered above 20,000, you can figure that more than $10,000,000 of the money of that state has gone out, never to return, and that an equal amount is likely to get out in their operation.
"A certain town in the West with 1,500 people boasts one hundred registered automobiles."
When the fact is considered that American manufacturers are turning out 200,000 cars this year, representing at a fair selling valuation $200,000,000, to be added to the stock of second-hand cars in the country, some idea may be gained of the immense drain on capital which this industry produces.
Other factors which enter into the problem are the expense of maintenance and the shrinkage in value. Both are heavy drains on the pocket-book, and to men with moderate fixed incomes are ruinous.
The average life of a car is three years or less, and when discarded the selling value represents but a small fraction of the cost. The demand for money from the West has been so active that Eastern bankers have been at a loss to understand the cause, and have finally decided that automobile loans have something to do with it.
Another cause which is contributing more largely to the retirement of capital is the Western land mania which just now possesses the people. The tide of mining and wildcat speculation has been diverted into real estate channels, and from ten-acre lots in the Everglades of Florida, to quarter sections in the far West multitudes of people are investing, and largely on borrowed capital.

It is estimated that 100,000 farmers have gone over the line into Canada, and planted their money during the past two or three years, to say nothing of investors in the states west of the Mississippi. The automobile and land fever has produced an epidemic which is taxing capital and may result in stringency.

THE CONTEST COMING.

Under this heading a dozen or more papers in Wisconsin published simultaneously one day last week a stock editorial sent out from Madison of which the following is a copy in substance:
"The Standpatrons are promising a spectacular campaign for Wisconsin, etc. Money without limit is ready—every newspaper with a price will be bought—master barons digging up the coin to murder Bob—Joe Cannon coming to stump, Ballinger too, also Wickersham, Hitchcock, Aldrich and Snoot bearing down like whirlwind—Jackpots in legislature and state to be terrorized—Quick, ye saviors of a nation, come with your axes, guns, even a club if nothing else, and save patriots who alone are pure and ready to lay lives on the altar of Mother Wisconsin."
This hysterical outburst indicates that the "patriots" of Wisconsin are in a precarious position. If you haven't got an axe, bring a gun or a club and save this cherub host from sacrificing their lives on the altar of "Mother Wisconsin."

Johnnie got your gun.
And be ready for the fray.
For "Mother Hodge" needs you.
And you mustn't stay away.
Loyalty to Taft and the republican party can be expressed without an arsenal.

THE STATE FAIR BOARD.

The investigation of the State Fair Board, recently published, is the cause of much discussion and liberal criticism, and while the members are not accused of dishonesty, the lack of method and system is freely denounced.

The report published is incomplete and unfair to men on the Board who served as superintendents and heads of departments. Much of the money charged to these men as salaries was paid out to helpers.

These men owe it to themselves to publish a list of all moneys received and paid out during their term of office, and the mistake made in not publishing detailed reports of this kind every year.
This is an age of publicity and public funds, which are always trust funds, should not only be accounted for to the last penny, but an accounting should be rendered for the enlightenment of the public.

The people's representatives have voted money freely for the support of the state fair, and they are entitled to know how this money is spent. The system of bookkeeping should be changed, for the protection of the Board and for the enlightenment of the public.

The least that congress can do is to provide for a permanent tariff commission with a liberal appropriation for its support. Public sentiment is back of the president in this demand and the men who are opposing the measure can not afford to ignore this sentiment. Congress has demonstrated its lack of ability to deal with this perplexing question intelligently, and the time is ripe to relieve them of responsibility.

The masons of the city fail to recognize the fact that public sentiment is not with them in their strike, and that the eight hour day is not popular in Janesville. Better get in line and help to boost. The outlook for city growth and development is better than it has been for years and it is up to every man to lend a hand.

"Fair minded democrats" are a little shy this year, as they propose to stay by their party in hope of winning some of the prizes. Insincerity does not appeal to them, and the patriots who propose to make their campaign an issue of disloyalty, under an assumed name, will be deprived of old time democratic support.

W. J. Bryan is in a receptive mood. He is satisfied that the democrats will elect the president in 1912, but thinks it too early to talk about a candidate. Which means that "there's a willin'."

Editorial That Backs Fired.

The Milwaukee Journal, staunch supporter of Senator La Follette, recently printed as its leader editorial in double headed type and part in capitals by way of emphasis an article which started thus:
If the president of the United States should come into the state of Wisconsin and urge the people in a general election not to elect this man to congress, to nominate this man for congress, and pass from state to state, and state to state, with all the power of patronage behind him, what would be thought of it? It would not be tolerated for one moment; it would LIGHT THE TORCH OF REVOLUTION; IT WOULD EXPLODE THE MIXED WHICH WOULD DESTROY, UNLESS REJECTED, THE REPUBLICAN PARTY. Why? Because if you allow the executive to choose the legislature you make two departments where the framers of the government made three.
And yet this is just exactly what Senator La Follette did at the time he was governor of the state of Wisconsin. At that time he was a candidate for re-nomination to the office of governor. He made his campaign tour of the state and in the legislative districts where a La Follette man and a stalwart were candidates for the legislature he devoted his remarks to a considerable extent to an endorsement of his candidate, urging the voters to cast their ballots for him. After the nomination he even went further than this. Where a stalwart was nominated he lauded the democratic candidate for the legislature with similar intent.
The condemnation that may be applied to President Taft on a large scale like country well to Senator La Follette in that case on a much smaller scale. Where La Follette allowed to have his unrestricted way the result would be as here predicted by the Journal.

You have a one-man power that hundreds of thousands of citizens of Wisconsin came across the sea, left the homes of their childhood, to escape. This is not said for politics; it is said for citizenship. It is to speak for perpetuity of representative government, not in some detail, but in its heart, and soul, and life.—Green Bay Gazette.

La Follette has already offended, but it is not at all sure that Taft will take that predicted trip through Wisconsin.
Heart to Heart Talks.

WHAT IS CIVILIZATION?
The other day the dispatches told an interesting story about the aeroplanes circling around the sphinx and the pyramids in Egypt.
Whereupon the editor of a New York newspaper wrote a two column editorial about the advance of civilization since the days of the building of the pyramids.
Certainly it is a long cry from the sphinx to the flying machine.
We do not know what purpose that inscrutable face of stone half buried in the sands was meant to serve.
Nor do we know how the pyramids were built at a time when there was no steam or electricity, no derricks to lift the vast stones and no dynamite to blast them out of the quarry.
We only know that great swarms of slaves lived and died at the task.
We have made great progress since the day when some master imagination saw in his vision the contour of that great stone face that for centuries has looked out over the desert sands.
But how?
True, we have taken great leaps in the matter of transportation and locomotion.
But what boots it that we can boast of our flying machines or of an express train that goes from Chicago to New York in eighteen hours? Is that civilization?
What is civilization?
Our books on economics say that civilization consists in the organization of industry, the accumulation of wealth, disposition of thrift, invention, etc.—what the New York editor says.
But a great Frenchman told us a hundred years ago that these things were but the civilization of the ant hill and the beehive.
The ants and the bees organize industry, accumulate wealth, dispense thrift, and, what is more, they organize governments and maintain law and order.
Nor these things of which we boast are only the indices of civilization—sort of byproducts.
Civilization is more than these. It is the near realization of the ideals of the best men and women of our day. It is more than the development of mind. It is the development of the HEART.
Civilization is that state of society where men and women FIGHT as well as think.
Civilization—the real thing—is progress along the line of human brotherhood. It is ORGANIZED KINDNESS. True civilization consists in the spirit of HELPFULNESS.
If the editor wanted to compare something that really showed our progress he should have compared the pyramids with a great modern hospital or asylum or home for the friendless.

One merchant said to his tolling clerk: "I'm greatly pleased with the way you work. The chap who tends to his duties right is bound to win the world."

THE TWO MERCHANTS.

worldly light, and you're bound to get to the top some day; meanwhile I guess I'll advance your pay." O glad was the heart of the clerk then, and he buckled down to his work again, and he made things hum in the blessed old store, as things had never been hummed before. In other store room, across the street, the clerk was working with frozen feet; the merchant carried a sword all day, and grunted as he gave them their meagre pay; he never praised them when hard they wrought, but kicked and scolded, and made them hot; and so they sold, and sold, and sold, away the passing hours of each golden day. There's something wrong if you lay the blame on the men who help you to play the game, when things go crooked and trade is hurt; your men would help you to make things hum, if they'd been treated in proper shape—been given poles instead of craps.

GOVERNMENT TO INVESTIGATE EXPRESS COMPANIES' HIGH RATES.

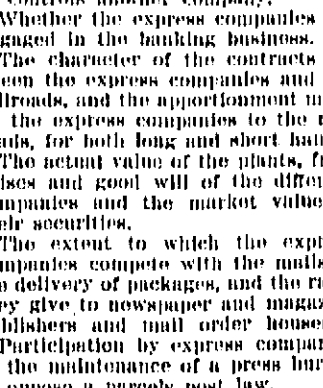

Congressman Sabath of Chicago, who introduced a resolution calling for the general investigation of express companies and their operation.

Washington, D. C.—Through a resolution introduced by Congressman Sabath of Chicago, one of the most far reaching problems recently undertaken by the government will be attempted. The investigation is the outcome of a nationwide demand for reduction of express rates. The interstate commerce commission, according to the Sabath resolution, is directed to conduct the investigation, but there can be no doubt of the power of its lower of congress to take the matter up in any manner desired.

The resolution provides for an investigation committee of six, three from the house and three from the senate, empowered to summon witnesses, examine books and records of the express companies and report upon the following points:
The relations of ownership or management between the express companies and the railroads.
The relations existing between rival express companies and the common ownership of stock.
What investments the express companies have made in railroad stocks and bonds.
The capital stock, or membership stock, and the officers and directors of all the companies.
Whether any express company owns or controls another company.
Whether the express companies are engaged in the banking business.
The character of the contracts between the express companies and the railroads, and the apportionment made by the express companies to the railroads, for both long and short hauls.
The actual value of the plants, franchises and good will of the different companies and the market value of their securities.
The extent to which the express companies compete with the mails in the delivery of packages, and the rates they give to newspapers and magazine publishers and mail order houses.
Participation by express companies in the maintenance of a press bureau to oppose a parcels post law.

WILL START WORK WITHIN A MONTH

PLANS COMPLETED FOR WISCONSIN TELEPHONE COMPANY'S NEW BUILDING.

$75,000 IN IMPROVEMENTS

$15,000 For Building $25,000 For New Apparatus and $35,000 For Outside Work.

Work on the new building for the Wisconsin Telephone Company, which will be constructed on the corner of Division and East Milwaukee streets, will commence within the next thirty days according to the statement made this morning by Alonzo Burt, of Milwaukee, President of the Wisconsin Telephone Company.

"Our plans have all been drawn and accepted for the building," said Mr. Burt, "and the work will begin as soon as the contract can be let and actual building begun. The structure will be two stories in height with a large, light basement. It will be average by thirty-three feet. The material used will be vitrified brick with bedded stone trimmings and I can assure you it will be handsome building when completed.

"The basement will be used to store the heavier material. On the first floor will be the offices and the operating room will be on the second, or top floor. The interior construction will be what is known as inside factory construction with hardwood floors and black trimmings. Everything about the building will be first class and up to date and the cost will reach fifteen thousand dollars."

Mr. Burt went on to state that the company intends to install what is known as the central energy telephone system with the common battery connection, doing away with the ring of any bell to call central and making the service up to date. "In order to do this," he stated, "it will be necessary to rebuild the entire switch. This will mean twenty-five thousand dollars expenditure for the apparatus used and thirty-five thousand dollars for the stringing of new wires and cables and otherwise rebuilding the present system. It means a change of every telephone in the city and stringing of new wires to take the place of those now in use which would not be strong enough to stand the work."

"I think that it will take in the neighborhood of three months to complete our building and that we will have the changes made in our outside work and installing the new telephone by the first of next January. In all seventy-five thousand dollars will be expended this year in Janesville and we mean to give the subscribers to our line the best system known in the telephone world."

Mr. Burt and W. R. McGovern, the engineer of the Wisconsin Company spent some time in inspecting the lot where the building will be erected, consulting the city engineer and planning for the letting of the contract for actual construction.

Arthur Stiff and Mrs. Charles Story Known to Have Gone Southward at 10 A. M. at Beloit.

At a late hour this afternoon Arthur Stiff, who is alleged to have deserted a wife and six children at Evansville and departed for parts unknown in the company of Mrs. Charles Story of 153 Locust street, on Friday last, had not been located. E. J. Welch took a trunk to the depot for Mrs. Story on the day in question and it has been learned that the baggage was checked to Beloit. Mr. Story, husband of the missing woman, is a carpenter by trade and has been building a barn near Hanover. On Sunday, after his return to Janesville, he received a letter from his wife which contained the following explanation of her absence: "I could not live with you any longer and be true. So I'm going away with one I love. Don't dare to follow. If you do there'll be something doing." Stiff is a railroad man and had charge of the section gang that laid the heavy rails to Evansville last season. His children range in age from two to twelve years. Mrs. Story's family lives in Rosebud.

NEW JERSEY "BABY FARM" MYSTERY RIVALS GUINNESS CASE. Mrs. Elizabeth Ashmead, who has been arrested as proprietress of a baby farm just outside Millville, N. J. Officers digging on the alleged baby farm in search of infant bodies.

Millville, N. J.—Mystery rivaling the famous Guinness case surrounds the alleged "baby farm" of Mrs. Elizabeth Ashmead. She, with other parties, is now under arrest.

The entire town is in a uproar over the sensational disclosure brought to light by the arrests. Sentiment is strongly against Mrs. Ashmead, principally because she has twice before been in the toils of the police of Philadelphia. Mrs. Ashmead is locked up at the city hall under $2,500 bail. William Stanford, her son-in-law, is in another cell, held in the same amount.

Held as witnesses under police guard are Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Knowles, of New York, and Mrs. Grace Stanford, daughter of the Ashmead woman. They are at the Weatherly House, where Mrs. Knowles is in a condition that necessitates the services of a physician.

Mystery, crime and romance are tightly woven together in this strange case, which has startled not only northern Jersey but the entire state.

For two years Marshal Charles Blagg and Officer Thomas Breeden have been endeavoring to collect evidence against the Ashmead woman.

During those two years the two officers quietly went about their business and as each bit of evidence was obtained carefully placed it away for future reference. Last Saturday night Chief Blagg and Officer Breeden were both at the station when the 5 o'clock train came in. Mrs. Ashmead was at the depot eagerly peering at the faces of the passengers as they alighted. Suddenly her face brightened as she rushed forward to greet a young man and a woman who bore every mark of refinement. The man carried a suitcase and appeared to be nervous. The trio climbed into the waiting carriage and were immediately driven off.

The chief and his assistant believed the time to act had come. They returned to the city hall and calling together the remaining members of the force told them what was to be done. With Chief Blagg in the lead the officers started for the Ashmead farm. In the party there were Officer Breeden, Wright, Clark, Holmes and Phifer. They arrived at "the Pines" shortly after 7 o'clock. All was quiet at the house, and without waiting to knock the officers rushed in and told Mrs. Ashmead she was under arrest. The woman tried to hide something that she held beneath her apron, but she was detected before she had accomplished her purpose, and the raiders confiscated a grip filled with the surgical appliances. These instruments are made only to be used by skilled physicians in the practice of their profession.

Turning to ascend the stairs where voices could be heard on the second floor one of the officers noticed that Mrs. Ashmead tried to make for a pantry. Shouting to one of the raiders to catch her the rest of the officers went upstairs, where they found Mrs. Knowles in bed. More instruments were found here.

The officer who had captured Mrs. Ashmead had in the meantime handcuffed her and looking in the pantry which she had tried to reach found a shot gun and pistol. On the upper floor the officers ordered the apparently ill woman to dress and told her she was under arrest as a witness in a most serious case. Stanford was also found on the upper floor of the house.

After the prisoners had been taken to the jail and the witnesses to a hotel where they were placed under guard, the officers returned to the farm and made a thorough search of the premises. Every room was examined. The officers suspecting there must have been some place where bottles of children had been made away with, began a search.

All night and a great part of the day they remained in and about the house, digging in the cellar and in the garden but up to tonight had unearthed no clues.

Many letters written to the Ashmead woman were found, and these were taken to the headquarters and an effort will be made to locate the writers.

The officials in charge of the Washington convention, which will itself be the most cosmopolitan gathering ever held in America, were so impressed with this painting, "The Crusaders of the Twentieth Century," that they have arranged to have it reproduced on a large scale in living tableaux at one of the convention sessions. The picture is being reproduced in colors for use in the schools, and it will be given to every one of the thousands of schools in mission lands. With the unrivaled machinery of the modern Sunday school to distribute it, the picture will doubtless be more widely circulated than even the copies of the most famous of the old masters.

In North America, the picture is being used to help carry the idea of World's Sunday School day. All over this polyglot world Sunday schools will celebrate May 22 as World's Sunday School day. To make the services uniform, a special program has been prepared by the World's Sunday School association, and it is being issued by all the principal denominations and by the association itself. This unique program has been translated into more than 200 languages and dialects. The three hymns used are those which have been universally translated; there is a selection from the Psalter, a prayer written for the exercise by an Episcopal clergyman; and a few facts concerning the growth of the World's Sunday School association, with its present membership of more than 275,000 schools and more than 25,000,000 members.

The pastors of all Christendom have been requested to preach special sermons on the morning of World's Sunday School day, emphasizing the importance of the Sunday school and the religious training of the child. Enthusiastic Sunday school leaders say that on May 22 the thought of all churches everywhere will be centered upon the child to a degree without precedent in all Christian history.

More than forty countries will be represented by officially appointed delegates. Four auditoriums will be used to hold the regular sessions, which will number 28. Speakers to the number of 250, representing 45 lands, have formal place on the program.

The limit of allotted delegates for the convention was long ago reached by most states; indications are that thousands of interested persons will go to Washington unofficially, to see as much of the convention as possible. A monstrous parade of men's Bible classes will be held on Pennsylvania avenue on Friday afternoon, May 20. A "roll call of nations" will be a feature of every day's meeting. There will be so many foreign nations represented that only in this way may they all be recognized.

President Taft, Ambassador Bryce, John W. Wainwright, Rev. Dr. F. B. Meyer, Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, and a distinguished list of foreigners will be among the speakers.

Hon. T. H. Yun of Korea, who declined a cabinet portfolio in order to take charge of a mission school, is also one of the speakers. He is frequently called the most eminent living Korean.

Rev. F. B. Meyer, the distinguished London preacher, is president of the World's Sunday School association, and Dr. George W. Bailey of Philadelphia is chairman of the executive committee. The latter has had charge of the preparation of the convention program and of the observance of World's Sunday School day.

You've Probably Met Them. Some people make the mistake of thinking they are sure just because they are slow.—Tuck.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

SHE was attired magnificently—a wonderful soft silk thing in the latest shade and a hat with plumes atop the elaborately carved structure of her white hair. Her liveried footman held the door of the cleansing shop open for her, and her limousine waited without.

She rustled up to the counter near me and laid a milk kimono upon it. "I want that cleansed and I want it done as soon as possible. How much will it be?"

The saleswoman examined it. "Three dollars, I think, madame. There is a good deal of lace upon it."

A frown contracted Madame's brow. "Oh, I really couldn't think of paying that," she said. "I will have to be done so soon again, you know. Make it two dollars and I will leave it."

"Very well, madame," said the saleswoman, and the milk kimono and lace was duly tugged.

And why have I been telling you all this? What's the moral?

Simply this—how many women with one-tenth the money that woman had would have had the courage to stand out against an exorbitant price?

Only the rich can afford to be economical.

The poor must be needlessly extravagant to hide their poverty.

If the women of the middle classes would absolutely refuse to be cheated or overcharged, just as this rich woman did, we might not have quite so much to complain about the high cost of living.

Much is written about being kind to shut-ins, going out of your way to bring cheer and interest into their idle lives.

Too much cannot be said along that line. But there is another closely allied subject that I think is rather neglected. And that is the opportunity to help those who, while not shut-in by sickness, are almost as badly "cabineted, cribbed, confined" by the necessity of constant attendance on other people who ARE sick.

A woman wrote to me the other day to tell me of a case of this sort—not at all, he understood, in a complaining way, only feeling it might be suggestive.

Her only daughter is ill with a spinal trouble which makes constant attendance necessary, and she is the only attendant.

As a result she is absolutely chained to the girl's bedside. She doesn't rebel at that at all, being a true mother, only, she says, with deeper pathos than she realizes, "I would like to feel free to go to church sometimes or to a Sunday meeting. We both belong to a large church and Sunday school, and yet no one has said they would be willing to come and stay and let me go to church."

If you belong to this woman's church, or know her, or perhaps you do, I am sure you will give her the opportunity for the occasional freedom she craves.

But if you don't know her, please don't think you are thereby absolved from giving some shut-in's shut-in a few moments or a few hours in the world without.

Tell over the heads of your acquaintances and friendship and I'm sure you won't fail to find the opportunity if you really want it.

C.—Two of Washington's society leaders in the younger set are Miss Chloee Smoot, daughter of United States Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, and Miss Ruth Fuller, daughter of the late Miles Fuller, who was one of Washington's leading educators. LONSDALE HOST TO ROOSEVELT.

American Hunter Guest of Donor of Rifle Used in Africa.

London, May 21.—When Theodore Roosevelt arrived from West Park, the country house of Whitehall Field, American ambassador, he at once hurried to Lord Lonsdale's London house, where he met at luncheon a number of friends and brother sportsmen.

Lord Lonsdale was one of the donors of the rifle that was handed to Mr. Roosevelt just before leaving for Africa. Other donors to the rifle fund were included in the party.

Mr. Roosevelt again tackled a mass of mail matter that is floating in daily. On this point he said:

"I should like personally to reply to each one who has been kind enough to take the trouble to write me, but I should be glad to have them all reminded how impossible it is for me even to see one out of ten of all the letters written, so I cannot acknowledge other than the most important."

Mr. Roosevelt is still troubled with his throat and had to consult a specialist again. His throat is husky and dry and causes him a great deal of inconvenience when called upon to talk much, even privately. His most important near engagement is to visit Cambridge, where he will be presented an honorary degree at a quiet ceremony.

RECEIVERS FOR CAR COMPANY.
Chicago Lines Involved in Bond Litigation Are Not Insolvent.

Chicago, May 21.—Judge Grosscup in the United States circuit court appointed receivers for the Chicago Railways company, which operates the West and North side street car lines.

The company is not insolvent and the receivership is believed to be a mere legal move in connection with Judge Ball's recent decision holding the railways company liable for bonds of the moribund Consolidated Traction company.

The petition for receivers was filed by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, which avers that the defendant owes it $69,549 for machinery. Henry A. Blair and John M. Roach were named as receiver.

Judgment for $1,344,684 against the railways company in favor of certain bondholders of the Consolidated Traction company was entered upon Judge Ball's finding of last week.

A. J. SNELL DIES A PAUPER.
Son of Murdered Millionaire Found Dead in Rooming House.

Chicago, May 21.—Albert J. Snell, son of the millionaire, Amos J. Snell, whose murder here, in 1888, created a widespread sensation, was found dead in bed at a cheap rooming house here.

He was fifty years old. He inherited a fortune from his father, and is said to have set a fast pace while the money lasted. He drifted steadily downward of late and for several years had made a hand-to-mouth living running errands on the docks.

COLOR LINE ALL WIPED OUT.
Sunday School Convention Delegates Pay Booker T. Washington Honor.

Washington, May 21.—All the wrinkles which were formed in the world's sixth Sunday school convention when the color line was drawn on the negro delegation by barring them from last Friday's parade were smoothed out when Booker T. Washington was made a life member of the organization, and the necessary subscription of $1,000 was promptly pledged, mostly by delegates from southern states.

SUGAR AND COFFEE RATES UP.

Railroads Boost Freight on Articles Affecting Every Household.

Washington, May 21.—Affecting every household in the United States, increases of freight rates from the Atlantic seaboard to the west were announced when the Western Trunk Line association filed new tariffs on sugar and coffee with the interstate commerce committee. These tariffs, ranging from 10 to 30 per cent, higher than those now in force, constitute the most notable and far-reaching increase in freight rates in recent years. They will become effective on June 30.

The Ticklemouse
—and his Sleepyland Adventures
By Roy Rutherford Bailey with Davy and Dorfy

The Flying Fish

"ANY more of them hereabouts?" asked the Ticklemouse, when he had tickled Dorfy awake last night.

"Any more of what?" asked Davy, who was already sitting up in bed.

"Oh, I know," whispered Dorfy to Willy Wishingmouse. "I just thought you might want some more waterfowlers, so I bought another set."

"Oh dear, there aren't any eagles in these!" said Davy, watching the finger-bowl where the Japanese waterfowlers were opening into funny little fish and sprays of bright colored flowers.

"They'll do," laughed Willy, "all they need is a tail-tickle or two."

"Tickling's over. They're big enough now. Bring on your wish!" squeaked the Ticklemouse a moment later; and Willy wished the four fish alive. They gasped and flopped about and raised aloft long, slender, wing-like fins, beating the air with quick, whistling strokes.

"Flying fish!" cried the little boy.

"Sure pop!" chuckled Willy, mounting one, "and they'll be off before you know it. Lively, there!" and in a trice they were up and away.

They knew Japan before they reached it, this time, by the delight of odor of the cherry blossoms. "To see Madam Butterfly again?" asked Dorfy as they neared Nagasaki.

"Not tonight," answered the Mouse. "She's probably busy reading her new book."

"Oh, the Ticklemouse book," cried Dorfy. "When will ours be ready, Mr. Ticklemouse?"

"The pictures aren't finished," Willy said, hanging his head. "I was posing for mine this afternoon and the artist suddenly changed his case. It snapped like a mousetrap and—I ran away before I thought."

"First mouse I ever knew to be afraid of an artist," said his uncle. "Living on crackers and cheese as they do, mice are usually fond of 'em—hello! There she is! Ahoy, there—ahoy!"

"Jump on, Cherry Bloom!" he called, and the little Jap girl flung herself across the back of the rising flying fish. In a moment the five of them were scudding across the bay, over the hills toward Cherry Bloom's bamboo cottage.

"Stop, stop!" yelled a passing fisherman, paddling after them as fast as he could. Other Japs heard his cries and shouting "Kidnapers, kidnapers!" in the Japanese tongue, joined in the chase. Some ran along the harbor shore, by a short cut to Cherry Bloom's home.

A funny little native policeman, saw the crowd and gave chase, tugging at his revolver as he ran. "This is getting serious," muttered the Ticklemouse to Willy. "They think we're running away with Cherry Bloom!"

A shot whistled past his ear as he spoke, but his fish only flew faster. Cherry Bloom seemed to think it all a part of the fun, for she cheered and waved her hand to the yelling mob below. Before the crowd got near enough to do any harm the five had reached her door.

"Hallelujah and farewell, greeting, Honorable Tickle!" she cried. The twins stared as she threw a kiss at Willy's nose and slipped into the cottage.

"Why, how did she know your name?" asked Davy, as the flying fish, one of them riderless now, whirled in air and flew toward home.

The Mouse laughed. "The Japs are good guessers," he said. "I imagine Madam Butterfly has been reading our sleepyland adventures out of her new book!"

He brought his flying fish to a quick stop and looked down at a tiny Japanese boat with a lone passenger in it.

"Madam Butterfly?" asked the twins.

"No, Cherry Bloom," said the Mouse, "and she looks tired of paddling. Let's

THE MEN AND WOMEN Who Enjoy the Choicest Products of the World's Commerce.

Knowledge of What Is Best More Important Than Wealth Without It.

It must be apparent to every one that qualities of the highest order are necessary to enable the best of the products of modern commerce to attain to universal acceptance. However loudly heralded, they may not hope for world-wide pre-eminence unless they meet with the general approval, not of individuals only, but of the many who have the happy faculty of selecting and enjoying the choicest products. Their commendation, consequently, becomes important to others, since to meet the requirements of the well informed of all countries the method of manufacture must be of the most perfect order and the combination the most excellent of its kind. After thirty years of general usage, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is everywhere accepted as the best of family laxatives. Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the laxative and carminative principles of plants known to act most beneficially on the system, but also to the method of manufacture of the California Fig Syrup Co., which ensures that uniformity and purity essential in a remedy intended for family use. It cleanses and sweetens the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects. To get the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, buy the genuine only; the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package. Price, 50 cents per bottle.

"Because you have to stay here."
"Well, I'm— But this time he apparently found no adequate adjective.
"If this ain't the rummiest Christmas
dole!"

She put out her hand. "Here's something for you, poor man," she said as steadily as she could. "It's my King George gold piece, date 1762, and belonged to my father, who wore it on his watch chain and who is dead. Perhaps they'll let you buy something
with it."

He looked at the hand. "If she ain't
stitchin' out her duke to me right
through the bars! Blamed if she ain't!
Looks like a lily—a lily white lily,"
he repeated wonderingly, "one of them
kind we won't run across when the cup turned up adrift on an island just
to waltz in green grass!"

"Don't you want it?" said the child.
He extended a great, coarse hand
hesitatingly, as if half minded to and
half minded not to touch the white
finger tip.

"You ain't afraid?"
The golden head shook ever so slightly. Again the big hand went toward the small one, then suddenly dropped.

"Right this way, m'lord—m'lady!"
The face of the convict abruptly changed.
Pony, hatred, a blind instinct to kill, were unmistakably revealed in his countenance as he heard the bland voice of the police agent. From the child's hand the gold disk fell and rolled under the wooden slab that served as a couch in the cell.

"Good heavens!" Mr. Gillett seized
the girl's arm and abruptly drew her
away. "My dear little lady," he said,
"really you don't know the danger you
run. And near that cell of all of them!"

"That cell?" observed Sir Charles.
"Then that is—"

"The convict I was telling you about
—the 'Pot of Pisco,' the 'Pride of Golden Gate.'"

CHAPTER II.

A MESSAGE TO THE ADMIRALTY.

THE following night Captain Macpherson, in his cabin, rolled
up carefully the chart he had been scanning, deposited
it in a copper cylinder and drew from his pocket a small pipe. The weather had turned misty again;
above the wind sounded loudly. Now,
it descended on the ship like a fierce scolding virago, then rushed on with wild, shrieking dissonance. Suddenly something happened that caused him

below, their blasphemous shrieking to be let out! To this turmoil and uproar
were added the frantic appeals and inquiries of the passengers who, more or less dressed, had hurried to the deck
and who were now speaking to the master of the ill-starred vessel. He answered them briefly. "What could be done would be done."

"It's a question of the boat, I suppose," Sir Charles, one of the calmest
of the ship's cabin party, asked quickly.

"In ten minutes they'll be ready for
the launching with no lack of water
and provision, and plenty of wraps
and greatcoats. I'll be a bit disappointed, but no doubt out you in the wee craft."

The boat was soon overhauled, the lockers and water butty were filled, and
the passengers, one by one, set into it.
On the whole, at that moment for leaving the ship their conduct left little room for criticism. One or two of the women who had appeared on the verge
of hysterics now, restrained audible manifestation of emotion. Sir Charles proved a monument of helpfulness, assisted in placing the women here and there and extended a helpful hand to Lord Honsdale, who had become somewhat dazed and inert. Total darkness
added to the difficulties of their task,
for the moon, which until then had
shone with much lustre, now went behind a curtain of cloud. But Captain Macpherson coolly called out by name
the men to handle the lifeboat, and with no evidence of disorder they crowded in, none too soon. As the boat
with its human freight hung in readiness for the lowering the remaining spur of the Lord Nelson fell with a mighty crash.

"Remember the name of your ship,
lad!" Captain Macpherson's voice seemed to anticipate a movement of panic among the seamen on deck; if there had been any intention to rush
the already well loaded boat it was stayed.

"Mr. Gillett, I'll be troubling
you for the keys to the convict's deck.
Mr. O'Brien, get on and take charge.
Steer southeast with a bit of rag; it's
your best chance, to get picked up.
Hold near the ship until the other
boat with the crew can come alongside. It's as well to keep company.
Are the lines clear? Let her go."

The boat was lowered and at the right moment touched a receding
wave. Captain Macpherson waited until the chief officer called out that

ENTANGLED IN HER OWN WRECKAGE THE MESSEL THUMPED AND POUNDED.

to change his mind; abruptly hurried
to the other end of the cabin, he found himself lying half stunned on the floor. A hubbub of noises filled the air—snappings, crashings, the rending
of woodwork.

Captain Macpherson staggered to his feet and, swaying like a drunken
man, stood a few moments holding his hand to his brow. Then his hat
clutched, and he shook it at the cylinder that had fallen from the table.

"Yo riperous, lying thing!" he cried
and ran from the cabin to the deck.

A single glance told all; two of the ship's giant spars had gone by the board; entangled in her own wreckage, the vessel thumped and pounded
with ominous violence against some sunken reef. Captain Macpherson groaned.

"Mr. O'Brien," he called loudly.
"Are you, sir?"

"How long do you give her?"
"Half an hour, sir!"

"The master shook his head. "She'll
not last that long."

"Any orders, sir?" asked the chief
mate.

Captain Macpherson recovered himself; his tone became once more quick
and incisive. "Ye're right; I'm gone
daffy. We'll get this business over in a decorous and decent manner." A number of orders followed.

As the chief mate disappeared to execute the commands he had received
the harsh noises of the breaking ship,
the seething of the sea about her, the
slapping of canvas like helpless, broken
wings, was supplemented by a babel
of new and terrifying sounds.

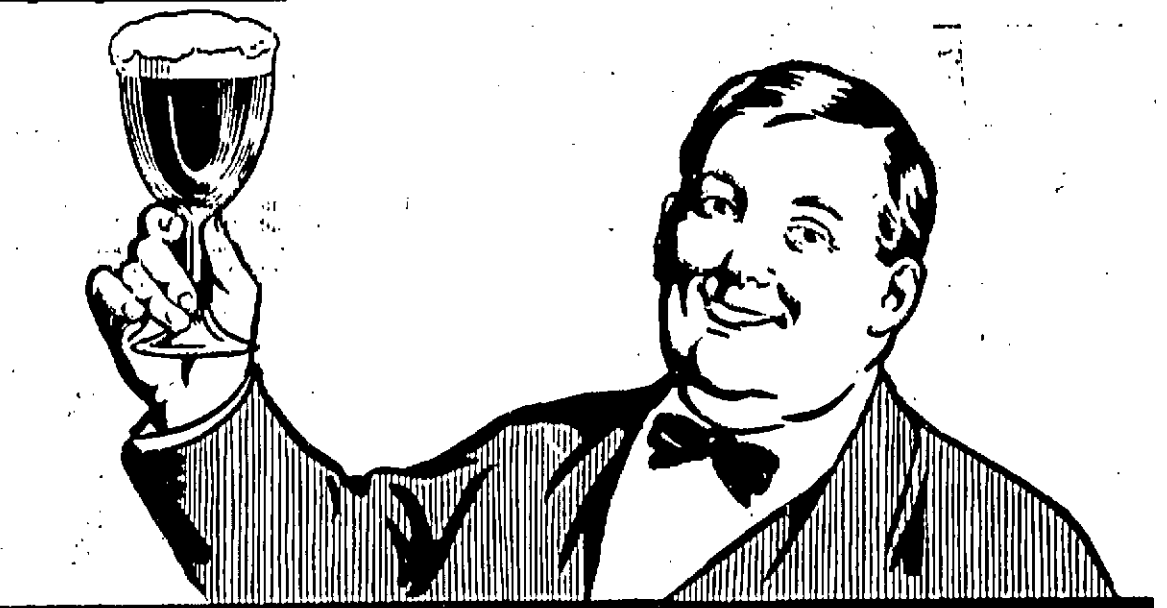

they were safe's away, then gave his
last order:

"And now, lads, ye can be lookin' to yourselves!"

"They did. The master turned and with some difficulty made his way toward the convict's cells. Suddenly a number of mad, leaping human figures
issued with horrible cries from one of the hatchways.

"The life raft!" Shrieking, calling
down maledictions on the captain,
they ran about, when suddenly an angry black wave swept the deck. A few went overboard with the blowing
crest; several were hurled against the bulwarks, limp, lifeless things; swirled
back and forth. One of their number,
a big fellow of unusual strength, was
shot toward the open companionway,
leading to the main cabin. As he plunged down he clutched at and caught the railing. Considerably shaken, dripping with water, he pulled himself together, and, raising his face, sodden and fierce, like a beast brought to bay, he looked around him. The light of one or two swinging lamps that had not yet been shattered revealed dimly the surroundings, the little tables. Unconsciously his eyes brightened; the sudden anticipation of the drunkard who had
long been denied shows from his gaze,
as it rested on a wideboard across the cabin.

"Bottles!" he said, steadying himself.
"Dum! Well, I guess there ain't much chance for any of us, and a man's a fool to go to hell thirsty!"

The Optimist's Corner Daily Helps to Health and Happiness

By GEORGE F. BUTLER, A.M., M.D.

While King Pyrrhus was preparing for his expedition into Italy his counselor, Cynaeus, said
to him:

"Well, sire, to what end do
you make all this preparation?"

"To make myself master of Italy," the king answered.

"And what after that is done?"

"I will pass over into Gaul and Spain."

"And what then?"

"I will then go to subdue Africa; and lastly, when I have brought the whole world to my subjection, I will sit down at home and live content at my ease."

"For Zena's sake, sire," said Cynaeus, "tell me what hinders
you, if you please, from being
now in the condition of which you speak! Why do you not now
at this instant settle yourself in the state at which you aim, and
spare the labor and hazard you interpose?"

Since King Pyrrhus already possessed everything that is supposed to make a man su-
premacely happy this seemed wise advice. But Pyrrhus was not built of the material to accept it.
He was a twentieth century
hustler born before his time. He marched. And lo! and behold, a toothless old woman hit him in the head with a stone, knocked
him off his horse and killed him!

The race is not always to the
swift, nor success to the hustler;
and forever a man should know
when he has enough.

"BACK TO THE FARM" IS SLOGAN OF WOMEN

Fair Sex Hold Convention to Aid in Development of 12,000,000 Unclaimed Acres.

Arcadia, Mo., May 24.—Mrs. John A.
Curran today called to order the first
woman's land congress ever convened
and the slogan "Back to the farm,"
was adopted by the delegates.

The congress is held under the auspices of the Woman's Missouri Home Development company, an organization which was formed last January
for the purpose of co-operating with
the development of state resources,
and inducing the people to settle on
the unoccupied land in the state, for
there are more than 12,000,000 acres
which have never been touched.

Arcadia is one of the most picturesque spots in the state, and a tent
city was erected for the accommodation of the delegates.

The unique feature of this convention or congress is the agricultural exhibit shown in the fields. Instead of putting fruits and vegetables in glass
jars and bottles and standing them in rows on tables, or tying the grain in wreaths and stacking it in the corner of
some exhibition hall, the delegates
were taken over the country to see
the products.

They drove over ideal country roads,
saw the picturesque herds of Angora
goats, the Missouri mule in his native
habitat, the sleek cows driven home
at milking time by the little Arcadian
maiden and the ranches, which are pastoral idylls worthy the brush of a great artist.

Of equal interest with the agricultural exhibits shown at Arcadia was
the exhibit of the loom industries.
The women ransacked the district for rag rugs and woven "kivers" made by the early women settlers.

Think of Last Summer--

You can remember days when the heat inside your kitchen was so great you could hardly bear it. With the right stove you would have made a better hostess. Save your health. Don't put up with the drudgery of a coal range. You can have a clean, cool, pleasant kitchen. The does away with all drudgery of cooking. Why should you be a slave to a coal range when you can have an Oil Cook-Stove that is cheaper than coal, cleaner than coal, doesn't "smell," doesn't "smoke," lights instantly, can be put out instantly, leaves no ashes, and doesn't heat the kitchen. With one of these stoves you can boil, bake or roast the most elaborate dinner. You can change from a slow to a quick fire, or the other way about, by simply turning a wick. Apply a match, and instantly the heat from an intense blue flame shoots upward through the turquoise-blue enamel chimneys to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven—but nowhere else. The stove has every convenience that can be thought of: Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping food and dishes hot, drop shelves to hold coffee or teapots, towel rack; in fact every convenience possible.

The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive.
